

It is a privilege to be able to contest for the position of Mayor for the City of Kalgoorlie-Boulder. I was born, raised, educated and commenced my working career in Kalgoorlie-Boulder. I have a strong sense of belonging to the community. Myself, my fiancé and our young family, have engrained ourselves in the community.

Throughout my career in radio my sense of community grew. I was able to focus on changes we could make to better our community. With this shifting focus I became amazed by the generosity of our people. It has been inspiring to be involved with and donate my professional services to so many community organisations that make CKB the amazing place it is.

Our local business community has an abundance of iconic, dynamic & sophisticated businesses and products born right here in the City of Kalgoorlie-Boulder. We need to continue to foster this growth and inspire the next generation.

As communities evolve, the City of Kalgoorlie-Boulder seeks leadership change. I feel that local government should also undergo this change. We need to be a progressive city in line with the trends our core demographics expect, while still meeting the needs of all residents. We have enormous potential for growth to attract more people to live here, expand our blossoming arts and culture scene, inject more players into sporting teams, encourage diversity & inclusion and increase education opportunities in a range of areas including teaching, health and industry.

Our City has new and emerging leaders forging new paths and building a stronger economy. This can't be done alone - the community needs to be included. As part of this strategy I support an increase in local workshops and consultation sessions where the community can seek answers to their questions & have their say.

The Mayor & Councillors are chosen by the community for the best interests of the community, I have always been passionate about leading our City with a focus on what is best for our City and the community.
